DESIGN

COOPERATIVE

Student + Professional Collaboration

Please email completed applications to Artspace Education & Outreach Manager, Brittany Carlson at bcarlson@artspacenc.org by Friday, December 6, 2019.

The Design Cooperative teens will collaborate on a design project, learning to use visual design in telling a story. Creating a brand and messaging around an issue/topic that is collectively important to the group, teens will create a logo, tagline, work on copy and messaging for a campaign and share their campaign via social media. Depending on the topic chosen, teens may make ads or posters, bus graphics or billboards. The creative possibilities are endless!

Teen driven weekly meetings will be led by Julie Schmidt, Owner and Creative Director of yellowDog: creative with guest appearances from other local professionals working in all areas of the design process, including copywriters, developers, and other designers.

yellowDog: creative and Artspace hope that this experience will provide teens with the opportunity to practice and refine both creative and analytical skills while learning about the design process and how it can open doors to many career options.

Design Cooperative represents a variety of creative pursuits. Visual art experience not required.

The first Design Cooperative meeting will be held Thursday January 30, 2020

Please respond thoughtfully to the following questions.

Feel free to extend your answers beyond the text boxes.

How do you express your creativity?

What role do you typically play in a group setting? What unique things do you contribute?

What about this program sounded appealing to you?

What impact do you want to make in your community?
What issue would you like to promote or change?

If you had to write a list of the top 5 things you want to do in your lifetime, what would they be?

Is there anything else you would like to share with us?
